Directions (Q71–Q78): Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below.

When GlobalTech launched its social media platform, adoption was swift and staggering. Within one year, the company reported revenues exceeding 80 million dollars, positioning it as one of the fastest-growing technology ventures in recent history. This meteoric rise granted GlobalTech a strong foothold in the competitive digital communications market. However, the surface of success concealed a troubling undercurrent. Child safety advocates began to voice alarm over the volume of screen time the platform was consuming among teenagers. Adolescents were found to be neglecting academics, sleep cycles, and physical activity. Parents observed their children becoming emotionally withdrawn, prone to anxiety, and increasingly distant from real-world relationships. School counsellors noted a sharp uptick in cyberbullying complaints and a worrying decline in empathy among students. Friends, meanwhile, reported that meaningful offline interaction had plummeted. Face-to-face conversations were replaced by screen-mediated exchanges, and the platform, originally conceived as a bridge between people, had ironically deepened isolation. Adults in shared living spaces noted that genuine dialogue all but ceased once devices were out of pockets. A prominent research institute commissioned a nationwide study involving over 12,000 participants across age groups. The report painted an alarming portrait: the platform was linked to heightened rates of depression, reduced concentration spans, and a measurable erosion of civic participation. What had once been marketed as a tool for community building was fast becoming a catalyst for social fragmentation. The institute's final recommendation was unambiguous: the platform required immediate and comprehensive regulation, including mandatory time limits for minors and prohibition of targeted advertising to users below eighteen years of age. The study concluded that no degree of commercial prosperity could justify the documented deterioration of public mental health and social cohesion.

- Q73. What does the passage suggest as the PRIMARY reason the platform failed as a community tool?
 (a) Lack of internet connectivity (b) Poor content moderation (c) The platform deepened isolation rather than building genuine connections (d) Government failure to regulate technology (e) Over-reliance on paid subscriptions
